GRANNY

It is said that Saturn took only a single day to bathe in the waters of the Linden Sea and rest on its shores before beginning a grand monument to welcome future travelers. He labored for 40 years to build a beautiful arch and a small, but beautifully detailed home on the edge of the sea. At the end of his life, he laid down beneath the arch, and his spirit joined the Realm Beyond, leaving his dust as greetings to the great ships that landed many years later. His spirit watches over us today, content in the knowledge that he saved us all.

Context note: Fully embracing the pretentious old rich lady bossing people around.

My interior designer wasn't available until next week, so please just start with a deep clean of the property. There's a broken cabinet in the kitchen, and I have new fittings for the bar arriving in about an hour. I don't know why the sellers thought they could get away with leaving the taps broken, but I will be sending them a bill. Oh, and my bedroom furniture will be arriving soon as well. Please get that set up. I plan on staying for a few days to get acquainted with the area. I'm going to tour the local art galleries and make sure someone in this town can make a decent sangria.
